With consideration to Ezekiel 39:12-14, wherein "all the people of the land" will be burying the dead for "seven months", using a literal calculation, based upon Israel's current population, if half (50%) of the individuals in Israel buries 10 people a day - how many people will be buried at the end of seven months?

Using this modified calculation based on Ezekiel 39:12-14, the total number of people buried would be approximately 10.81 billion people.

Calculation Parameters

Variable	Value
Israel's population	10,148,000
50% of population burying	5,074,000 people
Days in 7 months	213
Burials per person per day	10
Total burials	~10.81 billion

Mathematical Formula

$$(5,074,000 \text{ people}) \times (10 \text{ burials/person/day}) \times (213 \text{ days}) = 10,807,620,000 \text{ burials}$$

Contextual Significance

This figure represents approximately 130.5% of the current world population (~8.28 billion), meaning the theoretical burial capacity would exceed the entire global population by about 30%.[1]

The text in Ezekiel 39:12-14 describes a coordinated, full-time effort where "all the people of the land" participate in cleansing the land through burial over seven months. The passage indicates that after this initial seven-month period, a "search" continues to ensure all remains are properly interred.[2] [3] [4] [5]
